Story Telling to Highlight Book Week

In conjunction with Children's Book Week, October 30 — November 5, the Literature for Children class at Henderson State Teachers College has scheduled a series of story telling hours at elementary schools in Arkadelphia, Hot Springs, Hope and Prescott.

Story telling hours will be conducted in primary grade classes in the Primary Building, Perritt and Peake Elementary Schools in Arkadelphia, in Greenwood Elementary School in Hot Springs, Brookwood Elementary School in Hope and the Elementary School in Prescott.

Light Shed on Hardening of Arteries

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Harvard University researchers say a study indicates water with fluorides may help prevent severe hardening of the arteries. Five doctors from Harvard's nutrition department conducted the study with two groups of people in North Dakota. Results were published Sunday in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Severe calcium deposits in the aorta — the major artery carrying blood from the heart to branch arteries in the body — were less in high fluoride areas. In the same issue, the AMA Journal commented editorially on the study, saying fluoride may help keep calcium deposited in the teeth and bones and out of the arteries.

Fluorides have a proven role of cutting tooth decay 60 to 70 per cent, the editorial said.

a man for two years and train him as a killer."

Roaring approval many of the mostly white audience of 14,000 students stood and gave Carmichael an ovation.

It was Homecoming Friday night and the Bobcats celebrated for the royal court by bouncing Camden 20- 7.

10 Political Races Termed Cliffhangers

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Political strategists are classing 10 Senate races, involving six Democratic and four Republican seats, as cliffhangers as the final full week of active campaigning starts.

Although other close contests might provide election upsets, leaders of both parties now are concentrating their attention on Idaho, Illinois, Massachusetts, Michigan, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, Oregon, Tennessee and Texas.

Workers who have followed campaigns closely is that there is no predictable sweep for either party and that most races will be settled primarily on personalities and local situations.

This could mean that the current Senate ratio of 67 Democrats and 33 Republicans may change only slightly in an off-year election in which the minority party customarily picks up additional strength.

The 10 races regarded as down to the wire affairs illustrate the seeming lack of an overriding issue that reaches across the nation.

In New England, for example, there is a sharp contrast between the campaigns in Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

In Massachusetts, the Republicans are running Atty. Gen. Edward W. Brooke, a Negro, against former Gov. Endicott Peabody for the seat being vacated by GOP Sen. Leverett Saltonstall. Some Republicans fear a white backlash against Brooke but even that issue is blunted by Peabody's strong civil rights stand.

In New Hampshire, Republican nominee Harrison Thyng, a retired Air Force general, is trying to combine an outstanding World War II and Korean record with proposals to step up the Viet Nam fighting into a defeat of Democratic Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre.

SEN. THOMAS DODD will be back in the spotlight in Washington shortly. The Senate Ethics Committee made known Oct. 26 that it will conduct a public inquiry into Dodd's financial affairs, presumably including charges that he pocketed some campaign funds.

Court Fails to Change Camden Vote

LITTLE ROCK (UPI) — The Arkansas Supreme Court refused today to throw 828 votes in a Camden ward and upheld the results of a 1964 wet-dry election in Ouachita County which the wets won by 713 votes.

The court said 65 irregular votes may have been cast in Camden ward 3B, but they were not enough to affect the outcome of the election. It also said it had found no evidence of fraud.

Dry forces claimed Ouachita County Circuit Court had erred by not throwing out the 828 votes, thus allowing the dries to win the election by 27 votes. They said at least seven persons had voted twice and that 58 were unqualified.

"We do say that there is substantial evidence to sustain the findings of the circuit court to the effect that all of the specific items of irregularities and illegalities...we not sufficient to void the entire election in Camden ward 3B," Justice Ed F. McFaddin.

LBJ Trip and Impact on Politics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey says President Johnson's Asian trip will not have any appreciable effect on the Nov. 8 election.

Republican House leader Gerald R. Ford doesn't think an expected campaign trip by the President later this week will help Democrats, either.

But they took different political paths to reach their conclusions Sunday.

"I do not believe that the President's journey — was in any way politically motivated," said Humphrey on NBC's Meet the Press.

He added: "I am sure the American people are pleased that the President went. I have a feeling that the attitude of the American public will be one of support for the President's efforts."

Ford said the expected campaign trip following Johnson's return Wednesday would not help Democrats because voters have kept their minds on basic issues, headed by inflation.

Ford said on ABC's Issues and Answers that Republican leaders had been apprehensive Johnson's trip would "divert public attention from the basic issues bothering the American people."

Both men delved into Southern politics.

Ford told a GOP fund-raising dinner in Macon, Ga., Saturday night that "Georgia's image in the 49 other states will be at a peak if Bo Callaway is elected."

Rep. Howard H. Callaway is running for governor against segregationist Democrat Lester Maddox. Callaway, a conservative, was called by Ford "one of the most able, most qualified people I know in the House of Representatives."

Meanwhile, Maddox claimed Georgia was the No. 1 target of the national Republican party. He said the national party was spending $500,000 a week on the campaign with funds from Wall Street and Washington.

"The Democratic party has a platform that we ask our fellow Democrats to adhere to. The segregationists have not asked the President of the United States, Mr. Johnson, or the vice president of the United States, Mr. Humphrey, to campaign for them and we have no intention of doing so, and I think that speaks for itself."

Humphrey refused to say if he would vote for George P. Mahoney, an opponent of open housing legislation who is the Democratic candidate for the Maryland governorship, if he lived in Maryland.

8 Persons Killed on Highways

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
An elderly couple from Bradford was killed Sunday in a two-car collision on U.S. 67 about four miles south of Searcy.

State Police identified the victims as Kate Foster Comer, 72, and R. L. Comer, 73. Officers said their car collided with one driven by an Illinois man.

They were among eight persons killed in Arkansas traffic accidents between 6 p.m. Friday at midnight Sunday, an Associated Press count showed today.

James G. Mitchell, 18, of near Weiner was killed Saturday night when he was struck by a car on Arkansas 18 about one mile north of Cash.

Officers quoted Lonnie Stoker, 18, of Grubbs as saying he pulled Mitchell from the car they were in and placed him on the road by the car that had run into a bridge. Officers said the youth moments later was struck by a car driven by Mrs. Winnie R. Robertson, 40, of near Jonesboro.

Florida Jean Smith, 22, of Searcy was killed Sunday in a two-car collision in Searcy. City Police said she was in a car driven by John Dan King, 28, also of Searcy.

Floyd Hargett, 71, of near Blytheville was killed Saturday when the truck he was driving left Arkansas 17 about six miles north of McCrory and plunged into a ditch.

Randall Morris Edmonson, 18, of Fayetteville was killed Saturday night when his car left Arkansas 45 and struck an embankment near Fayetteville.

Larry G. Smith, 16, of Atkins was killed in a head-on collision of two automobiles on U.S. 65 about three miles west of Morrilton Friday night. The other car was driven by Phyllis Christenson, 47, of Marianna.

Bailey Plant Is Dedicated

AUGUSTA, Ark. (AP) — The $11.6 million Carl E. Bailey electric generating plant was dedicated here Sunday.

Norman M. Clapp, rural electrification administrator, said the plant was a testimonial to the cooperation developed by the rural electric system in Arkansas.

The plant has a listed capacity of 100,000 kilowatts. It will supply six rural cooperative distribution systems.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—
Ladies, should a new beauty salon open on your street, a heavy aroma of pipe and cigar smoke may wait its way through the door to your startled nostrils.

Having always been aware that beauty is in the eye of the beholder, men are now realizing that the eye that beholds them in the mirror is their own and if it's to clasp on beauty, they need some help.

Many barber shops are burgeoning into elaborate salons for men where even toenails get a coat of pale polish, hair coloring is routine, hair dryers an integral part of the furnishings and shelves are stocked with colognes and face creams. Even hot combs to curl long, lanky locks are fixtures and hair nets and sprays to hold that curl are plentiful.

If you wander in when there isn't another customer in the place you'll know you're in the right church but the wrong pew if you're smart enough to sense why the towels and aprons are blue and not pink.

Yep, there's a boom in men's cosmetic and toiletry products for both at home and salon use. Soon husbands may maintain a discreet silence about the cost of maintaining a beautiful wife—a bone of contention in the household when HIS mad money was only spent on something sensible like golf balls.

Manufacturers claim the biggest news in men's toiletries this year is hair coloring. One ad after another proclaims that this creates a youthful look and lifts the spirits.

The idea isn't new. Many a wife has missed a half-bottle

ONWARD AND UPWARD appears to be the fashion motto in Moscow as well as in Paris, London and New York. Displaying capitalistic above-knee hemlines, these two Russian models brightened a Moscow conference. Purpose: To discuss the development of light industry in the U.S.S.R.

blunt-edged style so the wearer won't look outdated in modern clothes. He'll need a helping of aplomb to explain how the full, long crop grew overnight.

Then there is the California company that makes false eyelashes ONLY FOR MEN AND POODLES. If you happen to have both in the house, the first one up in the morning will probably be the sexier looking of the two.

But the last word in this world of masculine "beauty" is the new chest hairpiece. I assume this is for beach use only. But what if it comes off in the water? Hundreds of kids will panic at the "sea monster" rolling over the waves. And poor pop will be left with his bare chest hanging out, a red face and no foundation cream nearer than his beach bag to tone down the evidence of his obvious discomfort.

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After 50 years as one of the film industry's companies, Paramount Pictures has ceased to exist as a corporate entity.

Last week Paramount was withdrawn from the New York Stock Exchange trading, its final standing at 76%. Stockholders had voted to merge the movie concern with the Texas-based Gulf and Western Industries.

The merger followed an industry trend. Entertainment companies have been seeking the stability of having immense corporations as parent concerns, thus avoiding the periodic depressions that can come with changes in public tastes.

The American Broadcasting Co.-Paramount Theaters was absorbed this year by International Telephone and Telegraph. United Artists nearly merged with Consolidated Foods and is now exploring a combination with Transamerica Corp., a California insurance and financing giant.

What changes will the new affiliation bring to Paramount?

That is the present concern of studio workers. The production company has been hampered in the past three years by a debilitating proxy war which was waged and lost by financier Herbert J. Slegel and Broadway producer Ernest H. Martin.

The first half-century of Paramount's history provided many excellent years and, especially during the depression, some bad ones. The company was founded July 19, 1916, with its original merger — Adolph Zukor's Famous Players and the Jesse Lasky Company. In the following year, 12 other production companies were added.

Zukor believed in bigness, and in 1919 he started buying up theaters to provide showcases for the Famous Players-Lasky films. He also brought forth films on an epic scale — "The Covered Wagon," Cecil B. DeMille's "The Ten Commandments" (1923). Zukor paid his top stars handsomely: Mary Pickford was given a million dollars a year to remain with the company.

Paramount, as it has been called since 1927, fell on bad times during the depression. The weight of empty theaters carried the corporation down to bankruptcy in 1933. Reorganization in 1935 revived Paramount and the company began its most glorious years.

"If it's a Paramount picture, it's the best show in town" — so said the brave motto, and often it was true. The studio specialized in smart, escapist entertainment during the late 1930s and through the 1940s. Bing Crosby and Bob Hope set the tone for the Paramount product and the atmosphere at the studio — breezy, informal, fun-filled.

In 1949, the federal government directed Paramount and other companies to separate production from exhibition. Paramount Theaters combined with the ABC network. The studio continued to thrive, especially on the later epics of Cecil B. DeMille. But the declining market and internal problems brought a decline in Paramount's fortunes. The industry hopes the trend can be reversed by the infusion of new capital from Gulf and Western.

I am a candidate for re-election to Congress.

All of you have been wonderful to me throughout the years. In return, I have tried to do the job to the best of my ability. You are the judges of that.

I had hoped to be able to see each of you personally. I deeply regret that because of the work in Washington, and the short time available in the District, I have been unable to do that. If I haven't seen you, I want you to know personally that I cherish your friendship.

Leaders Roll; One Ranked Team Loses

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Ninth-ranked Arkansas, playing its most inspired ball of the season, crushed upstart Texas A&M 34-0 Saturday night at College Station with an awesome combination of offensive and defensive might as the Porkers have shown in years.

The victory gave Arkansas a tie for second with A&M in the Southwest Conference race and got the Porkers off to another exceptional stretch drive.

Coach Frank Broyles said he thought the Aggies were tired following four straight rugged games and that Arkansas was in its most advantageous position in three years.

"We were the challenger for the first time since the Texas game in 1964," said Broyles. "We made up our mind to run if we could and stop their running if we could," Broyles added. The Porkers gained 317 yards on the ground and held the Aggies to 32.

Many of the Aggie players lauded Arkansas as the finest team they've faced all year, including undefeated Georgia Tech, a 38-3 victor over A&M.

"If we'd have had an open date last week, they'd still have beaten us," said Aggie Coach Gene Stallings. "Arkansas has got a tremendous football team."

"If they play like that every week, I don't see how anyone can beat them," Stallings said. "This is the best I've ever seen them play against us."

Stallings said the Arkansas backs "just took the ball and ran over us and there wasn't anything we could do about it."

The swift striking Porkers, leaving the I formation for the first time in 2½ years, came out in a double wing-T and promptly rolled to touchdowns on their first three possessions.

Sophomore David Dickey scored four. The other touchdown came on Martine Bercher's 59-yard punt return down the sideline in the third quarter.

Reserves played the fourth quarter. But it was quarterback Jon Brittenum who got the Porkers off and running, turning in one of his finest performances of the year.

Brittenum ran the keeper to perfection, gaining 82 yards on 14 carries, most of that in the first two long scoring drives. He also hit on three of five passes for 44 yards, on an 11-yard lefthanded pass to Dickey.

"I almost fainted when he threw the lefthanded pass," said Broyles.

The Razorbacks, now 6-1 for the year, will try to continue their surge toward a third straight SWC title at Little Rock Saturday when they take on the Rice Owls.

SORRY ABOUT THAT Mr. Dawson. Kansas City quarterback Len Dawson has some bruised ribs, but the fans don't seem to mind. At least the one above doesn't.

Porkers Smash Aggies in Key Victory

By RON RAPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer Should what happened to Southern California and Whomling upset Notre Dame and Michigan State?

The Irish and Spartans rolled along their merry way Saturday, registering decisive victories over weak opponents. Notre Dame crushed Navy 31-7 and Michigan State shut out Northwestern 22-0.

But there were ominous signs for the handful of unbeaten college teams in a season that has been remarkably free of upsets until now.

Southern California, ranked No. 5 in The Associated Press' poll last week, was stopped by Miami of Florida 10-7 on Friday night and Wyoming, No. 10, was knocked off 12-10 by Colorado State Saturday.

The remaining unbeaten major college teams — UCLA, Alabama, Georgia Tech, Florida and Nebraska — kept their records clean for at least another week.

Notre Dame's remarkable passing attack bogged down a bit Saturday with sophomore end Jim Seymour nursing an injury, but the runners took over. Larry Conjar and Nick Eddy ran all over the Navy and four pass interceptions — three by linebacker John Pergine — helped matters considerably.

Clint Jones and Bob Apisa ran for touchdowns for Michigan State, which stopped Northwestern, allowing just six yards on the ground. The Spartans may have suffered a big blow, however, when Apisa hurt his leg in the second half.

Third-rated UCLA was led to a 38-13 triumph over the Air Force by Gary Beban who threw for one touchdown and scored two himself. A 71-yard unback of a pass interception by Sandy Green set up Beban's first score with the Bruins trailing 10-7 at the time.

Alabama, No. 4, got past Mississippi State 27-14 on three scoring passes by Wayne Trimble. Steve Davis kicked field goals of 35 and 31 yards.

Army Trying a Housing Experiment

By BOB HORTON
WASHINGTON (AP) — The women have formed a "waiting wives" club while the men are away. They take turns babysitting for one another. Town and a hairdresser are nearby. Elementary school is just around the corner.

A cozy suburb? Almost. Actually, it's a military housing experiment that could lead to the conversion of some deactivated bases into bustling communities of wives and children. The name is Schilling Manor. Population: 3,100, including 2,500 children. It's on a portion of Schilling Air Force Base, Kan., shut down last December as a part of Pentagon economy moves.

Now, use of the base's housing is getting a favorable once over as a new approach to assuring quarters for families of servicemen ordered to such isolated duty areas as Viet Nam.

At Schilling Manor, service-men's families are guaranteed housing the entire period their "sponsors" — the menfolk — are serving out one-year overseas.

"This housing is especially for what we call 'short-fuse' guys who have to go pretty fast without much time to arrange something for their wives," a spokesman said.

The military services routinely accommodate such families by assigning them ex-Schilling Manor, near Salina, cess housing on a what's-available basis at various installations. But people assigned to those bases naturally get first choice.

After 10 months, Schilling Manor's success seems assured. The project will be continued at least through 1968, a spokesman said.

Whether to open other housing at deactivated bases is being considered. Army studies are under way to determine what future housing needs will be.

More than 600 wives from all wanting or needing government over the country have chosen quarters by assigning them ex-Schilling Manor, near Salina, cess housing on a what's-available basis at various installa-

Officials expect the 730 homes — two, three and four-bedroom houses — to be filled by the end of the year.

The project is open to families of all services but the Army is more or less in charge of the operation.

The rent ranges from $135 a month to $205, depending on a man's rank. It amounts to forfeiture of his separation pay and housing allowance.

Fort Smith Climbs Into Top Spot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fort Smith Northside today climbed into the top spot in the Associated Press Arkansas high school football poll in the closest voting of the season.

The Grizzlies nudged Texarkana by two points for first place while Little Rock Hall, last week's leader, and North Little Rock battled for the third position.

Northside drew three first place votes and 126 points from the 14 sports writers and broadcasters participating in the poll. Voting is tabulated on the basis of 10 points for first, 9 for second, 8 for third, etc.

Texarkana, the only team to beat Northside this year, got seven first place votes but did not get as solid support in other upper positions and logged 124 points.

Hall had one first place vote and 112 points while North Little Rock had three first place votes and 110 points.

The top four have lost only once each — and that to each other.

Northside beat Hall last week, Texarkana beat Northside the week before, Hall stunned North Little Rock earlier in the year and the Warriors also in-arkans. North Little Rock and Northside have not yet met and the Wildcats don't play Texarkana.

Rounding out the top ten in order were Fort Smith Southside, Fayetteville, Crossett, Benton, Little Rock Central and

Training Field Is Considered

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Calif. (AP) — This 6,000-foot high Sierra Nevada resort community is being considered for use as a training and conditioning site for the 1968 U.S. Olympic track and field team.

Stanford and Idaho State universities are to send athletes here next month in a pilot program, said Walt Little, city director of parks and recreation Wednesday.

Little said South Lake Tahoe is at an elevation comparable with that of Mexico City, the 7,300-foot high site of the '68 Olympics.

Favorites Behind in Hawaii Meet

By WILL GRIMSLEY

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The United States and Britain, who have dominated the sport for years, had to face the stark realization today that they no longer have everything their way in the world of golf.

Going into the second round of the Eisenhower Trophy matches for the world team championship, the favored Yanks were tied with Sweden for 10th place, 14 shots back of Australia, the leader, at 214.

The defending champion British were even farther in arrears at 228, tied with Zambia and Japan.

Both the United States and Britain had ahead of them such implausible teams as India, Rhodesia, Germany, Chile and China.

Australia is out in front by six strokes over South Africa, thanks to a four-under-par 68 by Kevin Hartley, a 32-year-old methods engineer from Melbourne.

The Indians — two bearded siks with their long hair under turbans, a barrel-chested retired Army colonel and a 25-year-old Hindu — stole the show.

A. S. Malik, one of the siks, shot a 73, as did Ashok Mehra from Calcutta. The army colonel, P. G. Sethi, was even par until he reached the 195-yard

14th where he drove out of bounds and took a triple bogey six. He still finished with 75. The other Indian, S. S. Malik, counsln of A. S., had 83.

The Americans couldn't shake putt. Bob Murphy, the University of Florida student, had the best score, a 74. Deane Benham of Bethesda, Md., Downing Gray of Pensacola, Fla., and Ron Cerrudo of San Rafael, Calif., all had 76s.

Makalena Is Leader in Hawaii Meet

HONOLULU (AP) — "I taught him to play golf right on this course," said Ted Makalena Sr., as he watched husky Ted Jr. play his way around the Wailae links on the Pacific shores to a near-flawless 66. The score was good for a share of the first-round lead in the $57,000 Hawaiian Open.

Doug Sanders and Miller Barber, making their first Hawaii tour appearance, matched him with six-under-par scores of their own Thursday.

And Dick Lotz, 24-year-old California pro, shot a 67, trailing by one.

Ken Still, 31-year-old Tacoma pro and veteran Al Besselink also had 67s.

One reason for the low scores was weather that came right out of the travel posters.

National Open champion Billy Casper had a 72.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK, Captain J.T. West was a spunky man. Back in 1876 he retired from a successful Mississippi River Boating business and moved to Hope, (a cabin boy under him was a youngster named Samuel L. Clemens whom West nicknamed Mark Twain.) In 1893 The Bank of Hope came into existence with spunky Captain West as its first president. Later known as the First National Bank of Hope, it still maintains the old riverman's aggressiveness and business intuition. Since opening the doors of its new building at Second and Walnut in 1959, First National has almost doubled its customer deposits, and grown into a financial institution offering a full range of services to all Southwest Arkansas. Maybe it's because the Spirit of spunky Captain West is still there.

Bills Have a Habit of Sounding Same

By EDMOND LE BRETON
WASHINGTON (AP) — You read that the House passed today a compromise bill to do so and so and you have a curious feeling that you read this story before, not long ago.

If you are a consistent reader of national news, you may be having that little tickle of memory often and often as the House and Senate plow through the remaining business to end a Congress' two-year work this week.

Your memory is not tricking you. You have read something very similar, not long ago. What you are reading now is, technically, action on reports of conference committees.

Here is a rundown on the operation of such committees, made necessary by the makeup of Congress — a coequal House of Representatives and Senate.

Obviously there will be times when a bill that started in one chamber will be amended by the other, or when the two chambers, starting separately, will produce different versions of legislation on the same subject.

When this happens, the originating chamber, House or Senate, has the choice of accepting the changes made by its opposite number, or asking for a conference to try to adjust the differences.

Most major bills and most minor ones that are at all controversial go through the conference process. It follows from this that most of the important laws are written, in their final form at least, by a relatively small group of senior congressmen and senators.

A conference committee traditionally is made up of senior members of both parties, from the Senate and the House committees that handled the legislation. The majority party, at present the Democrats, has a majority of the conferees.

Conferees can be long and frustrating. The amendment made by one chamber to another's bill frequently is a total amendment — everything after the formal enacting clause is replaced by an entirely different legislative draft. The Senate, or the House, may limit its conferees' freedom to negotiate by voting to instruct them not to give in on this or that point.

The House has a strict rule of germaneness — an amendment must relate clearly to the subject of the bill. The Senate has no effective rule of this sort. So the Senate has learned to hitch an entirely different bill — as an "amendment" — to an unrelated bill sent to it by the House. This is a handy way to rescue a bill that has fallen into the hands of an unfriendly committee or is otherwise held up at some procedural roadblock.

Somehow, conferees usually result in agreement and in reports which in turn are approved by the House and Senate — a process ordinarily spoken of as passing a compromise bill.

This suggests a little arithmetic that may reassure taxpayers who think Congress always acts hastily. A major program, foreign aid, for example, or housing, normally requires enactment of two bills, and the process goes like this:

The House passes an authorization bill setting the limit that may be spent. The Senate passes it, amended. There is a conference, which produces a re-ported. The Senate and the House both approve the report. So far, then there is an appropriation bill actually providing the money. Same procedure. Total votes: eight.

Not necessarily perfect law-making — but not headlong haste, either.

THE WELL CHILD® All Take 'Cure' to Prevent Recurrence of Pinworms

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A mother asks how children contract pinworms and after the disease is cured how to prevent recurrences.

This disease is so common that almost everyone has it at one time or another. Bed-sheets and night clothes become contaminated with the eggs, which measure only 1/500th of an inch in their greatest length. They are easily picked up on the fingers or under the nails when scratching.

Furthermore, they are so light that they may be spread throughout a room by sweeping, dusting, changing the bed linen or hanging up pajamas. From the fingers they may be transferred to food. Once swallowed they hatch and grow to adulthood in the digestive tract.

Prevention of a recurrence is not easy. The first step is to insist that all members of the household take the treatment simultaneously and then repeat the treatment in three or four weeks to kill any new crop of worms that may be maturing in the body. Although there are several drugs for this purpose, tablets of gentian violet are the most widely used because they are both effective and low in cost.

During the treatment all undergarments should be boiled daily in a solution of two cups of household ammonia to 10 gallons of water. Before boiling they should be handled without shaking. The bedclothes should be similarly boiled two or three times a week.

In addition, each member of the family must keep his or her nails cut short and wash the hands and clean the fingernails before every meal and after every visit to the toilet. Separate towels must be used for drying the face and the rest of the body.

Q—My doctor prescribed Pamato for pinworms. Is it effective? What are the side effects?

A—A single dose of pyriminyl pamoate (Povan) will cure over 90 per cent of cases of pinworm. There are no serious side effects but it may cause nausea and mild abdominal cramps. If it is vomited, the vomit will stain any clothing it touches a bright red. Following a dose of the drug the stools will also be bright red but this does not indicate bleeding.

Q—When a child has pinworms should he be kept

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!

This column is for young people their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help US!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off.

Send your teenage questions to Helen Help US!, this newspaper.

Dear Helen: I am a man of 35, and have three wonderful little daughters, ages eight months to three years. My wife is in a mental institution. I was always the one who cared for them. Due to her illness, she neglected them. She tried to kill the children twice. Before she went to the State hospital, she would set fires, or turn on the gas. At other times she wanted to kill.

I have a pretty rough record myself. I had a drinking problem, and the last time my wife got violent, I took the babies away in the car and got picked up for drunk driving. I spent some time in jail, she was sent away, and our little girls went to a foster home.

I haven't had a drink in four months, and know I've quit for good. I can provide a home for the children and do a good job of it. I have offered a home to my wife when she is released, but she won't come back.

The Welfare Agency seems to think the children should be with their mother, but how can I be sure she won't get a relapse—and there will be no one to protect the babies. I love my wife, but I'd never sleep, knowing she had full care of them. I love those kids, and want them with me.

As it stands, the children are "farmed out," my wife will soon be released, and I get nowhere with the authorities. Should I fight through the courts to get custody of my children? Welfare wants me to pay their support while they live elsewhere. WORRIED

Dear Worried: Consult a lawyer (or your Legal Aid Society) who won't advise anything until all sides of the situation are thoroughly studied. Meanwhile, the children are safe in a foster home. I'm sure the Welfare Agency will not be hasty about returning them to their mother.—H.

WILL FIGHT HAVE LASTING EFFECT?

Dear Helen: What effect do you think a big argument between parents will have on five and seven-year-old children?

They have a wonderful father—he's a wonderful husband too—but the other day we had an awful fight. I admit it was mostly my fault. I slapped him and he slapped me in front of our two youngsters.

It upset them, as they had never seen us really fight before. Now I'm afraid our boy might not respect his father as much. Our little girl has already told me she doesn't like me for "hurting Daddy."

Basically we have a very good marriage, and I'm just sick about the whole thing. Do you think this will have a lasting effect on the children?—UNHAPPY MOM

Dear Mom: It won't if you explain to them that sometimes parents act like five and seven-year-olds when they lose their tempers, and they forget their anger almost as quickly. ...But don't be surprised if you hear them bragging to their friends about "Daddy's and Mommy's big fight." It won't have a lasting effect if you mention it with a casual grin, but right now it's given them considerable status as story tellers.—H.

Dear Helen: I had seen this man around town for a year. Then he sued for divorce and we started going together. We had planned on being married next July.

His ex-wife came back to town two weeks ago so he could see his son. Now she is trying to break us up. He is thinking of trying marriage with her again, so he can be with his son though he says he doesn't love her, only the boy.

We got along perfectly. I have children he likes very much. He swears he loves me. Should I just sit and wait for him to make up his mind?—AFRAID OF BEING HURT

Dear Afraid: You have no other choice, but don't wait too long.—H. P.S. I'm wondering: If the man has grounds for divorce, why doesn't he have at least half-time custody of the child?—H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen Help YOU. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of Hope Star.

Jewelry From a Paris Cubbyhole

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PARIS—(NEA)—In a tiny Paris hall room two attractive girls are gaining a reputation as topnotch jewelry designers. For two of Jacqueline Desfray's and Nicole Duval's designs have won recognition for France in receiving the yearly Diamonds-International Awards for 1966.

Neither of the girls will be able to come to New York to receive the awards. They can't afford to. All they hope is that recognition of their talent will bring in a lot of orders.

Their winning designs were selected from among 1,495 others representing all five continents. And one member of the award jury was Pierre Cardin. The prize-winning pieces will be exhibited at the Institute of Public Education in New York and will later be shown in Paris and London.

Jacqueline and Nicole, who are in their early 30s, set out on their own to design avant-garde jewelry about two years ago. After completing their studies at the School of Applied Arts and attending night classes at an art school, they took jobs with an established jeweler who executes most of the fabulous showpieces for the plush salons in the Rue de la Paix and Place Vendome.

"Here we stayed for eight years, then decided it was time to strike out on our own," explained Nicole. "We thought it was necessary to get away from conventional ideas in jewelry just as the avant-garde dress designers have been doing in fashion."

They rented a tiny cubbyhole in the heart of the diamond merchants' district with just room for a desk, worktable and filing cabinet. And they went to work.

One of their prize-winning exhibits is a tapered diamond collar caught with an arrow brooch of deep purple oval amethysts and a pendant of turquoises in robin's egg blue. The other necklace is a delicate arabesque of pear-shaped diamonds intertwined with strands of bright green emeralds and sapphires.

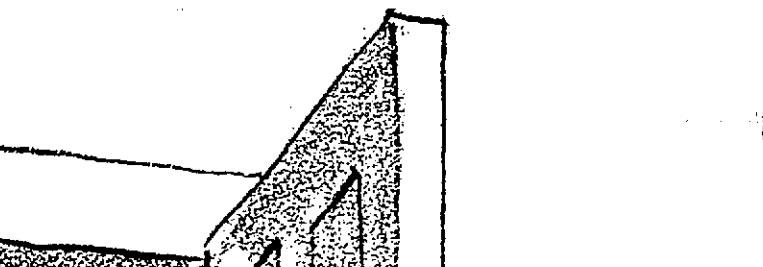

"Both these jewels are as supple as a Caldermobile," said Nicole. When and if these pieces are sold, the girls will get a reasonably good commission.

Neither of the girls dream of a plush establishment of their own. They prefer to stay on producing novel ideas and letting other people execute them. But with luck, they may soon get out of the little ha-room.

The necklace called "Nouvelle Vague" is one of the winning designs. It is a tapered diamond collar anchored by an arrow-shaped brooch in amethyst set off by a pendant of robin's egg blue turquoises.

Nothing in this world is impossible—except your neighbors' kids.

3 Americans Held in Jail in Brazil Make a Daring Escape

By JACK DONOVAN
RICHARDSON, Tex. (AP) — A fabulous diamond called the 007, and a South American general's aborted political power play are part of a story told by a Texas pilot who mysteriously fled a Brazilian prison with two American companions.

Joseph A. Truhill, 47, of the Dallas suburb of Richardson, said that he and Joseph McCutcheon, 36, and Sam Sexton Jr., 41, both of Fort Smith, Ark., were convicted on smuggling charges trumped up by Gen. Rio Grandino Kruei, former chief of Brazil's federal security police.

"We were framed on charges in which Gen. Kruei wanted to make a name for himself," Truhill said Sunday at a news conference. "He wanted control of the mining industries and the customs offices."

The three Americans appeared at the U.S. Customs station in Brownsville, Tex., Saturday after nearly nine months of detention at Brasilia, capital city of Brazil.

Truhill would not discuss details of the escape, saying only that it was engineered by the three prisoners and Mrs. Truhill, a trim, brunette pilot who once trained in vain to become a woman astronaut.

Brazilian authorities said the prisoners fled after being allowed to visit Brasilia last Thursday.

In Fort Smith, Sexton said the trio took a taxi 150 miles to an unnamed airfield and boarded a plane piloted by a Texas businessman and manufacturer, whom he did not identify.

Truhill, saying the plane was not one of five owned by his charter company, Air Services, Inc., said he and the other Texans flew the plane 40 hours with a total of eight hours sleep.

Truhill said they learned in jail that the missing 400-carat "007 diamond," valued at $2 million, was responsible for their arrests.

He said Kruei wanted to use Sexton's B26 plane to search for the diamond, which was sold to Hippocrates Basilis Takapoulos, 34, who operates a bar in a Brasilia suburb.

Truhill said that Kruei's go-between in trying to obtain the airplane "apparently double-crossed everybody." He identified the go-between as Paulo Leite, an import-export merchant who later was arrested along with Takapoulos and Juan Barbosa Sobrinho, alleged finder of the diamond.

Truhill said his knowledge of the diamond intrigue came from a man he knew as Delgado Assunciao, a deputy of Kruei's.

Luis Bronzendo, member of Brazil's Chamber of Deputies, accused Kruei of being "the only man responsible" for conspiracy, kidnapping and torture in the 007 case.

Vaughn had stopped a car in which Walker and Freeman Cumpe were riding when the shooting occurred.

In upholding the life sentence, the court said it found no merit in 12 points listed in Walker's appeal.

Desertions of Viet Cong Increasing

By ROBERT TUCKMAN
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Vietnamese officials today announced a sharp rise in Viet Cong desertions to the South Vietnamese side. They reported 2,062 defectors from the Communist cause in October, the third highest month this year.

The announcement came on the eve of South Viet Nam's National Day which will be celebrated with a big parade that will include 500 former Viet Cong in the line of march.

The war itself lapsed back into a lull after sharp weekend clashes. Only small ground actions were reported and monsoon rains again reduced U.S. air raids over North Viet Nam.

Viet Cong guerrillas shot down a U.S. C123 cargo plane today in the dense jungles of the "iron triangle" 23 miles northwest of Saigon. The plane's three-man crew was rescued unhurt by Air Force helicopters.

B52 bombers from Guam made two raids Sunday night over South Viet Nam.

One wave of the bombers struck for the second straight day in the central highlands near the Cambodian border. The bombers hit at suspected base camps and staging areas of the North Vietnamese regulars who launched five assaults Saturday against units of the U.S. 4th Infantry Division and then vanished in the elephant grass and jungle growth.

The raid was in support of Operation Paul Revere 4, taking place 43 miles southwest of Kontum City.

The other B52s raided Communist troop concentrations 20 miles west of Quang Ngai City near the central coast.

In Hanoi, President Ho Chi Minh repeated that North Viet Nam will continue to fight until its peace terms are met. Hanoi's official news agency said Ho reiterated his stand in a recent interview for a French publication.

Guinea Holds U.S. Envoy Under Arrest

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government of Guinea held newly arrived American Ambassador Robinson McIlvaine under house arrest today despite strong U.S. protests.

The State Department said McIlvaine and an unidentified Pan American Airways official were detained Sunday in apparent retaliation for the arrest in Ghana Saturday of a 19-member delegation from Guinea which included the foreign minister.

Guinea Radio repeatedly said the United States was responsible for the arrests in Ghana.

But Undersecretary of State Nicholas Katzenbach told the Guinea charge d'affaires in Washington Sunday that neither the U. S. government nor Pan American Airways "had any responsibility whatsoever for the incident" in Accra, the Ghanaian capital.

McIlvaine, 53, a career foreign service officer, had been named ambassador only last month and presented his credentials Thursday to Guinea President Sekou Toure.

The State Department said there was no hint of hostility there. Guinea and Ghana, however, have been hostile since Ghana ousted the dictator President Kwame Nkrumah last February and he was given refuge in Guinea. Toure accepted Nkrumah as a nominal ruler of Guinea.

Japan Sends Up Rocket

UCHINOURA, Japan (AP) — The first Mu rocket—designed to orbit Japan's first scientific satellite by 1968—was launched here today.

Officials of the Tokyo University space research team which conducted the test said the launch was a "success." They said the 70-foot missile was fired into the Pacific Ocean. The flight lasted three minutes 20 seconds.

A Bizarre Tale Is Right in Keeping With This Halloween

By ANNE SMITH
Miami Herald Writer
KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — One of the eeriest of Halloween happenings in the United States began here — in the nation's southernmost city — 35 years ago. The mystery lingers on.

It was a chilly end of October night when beautiful Elena Hoyos, 22, died of tuberculosis. The torture she had felt in life was gone, but even in death her body would not rest in peace.

As Elena died, a friend named Bienvenido Perez marched in a Halloween parade in a devil costume Elena had made for him.

Minutes later he was pounding at her door. "Something told me she was dying and I rushed to her house," Perez said. His suspicion was right.

One of the mourners at Elena's funeral was German-born Karl Von Cosel, a man in his 60s who was a technician at the Marine Hospital. He held a deep admiration for the girl.

He painted her name on the side of his airplane after the funeral. Perez visited Von Cosel a few days later.

Inside the plane, propped up in a chair, was Elena's body. Perez, ordered away by Von Cosel, raced to the home of Elena's sister, Florida Lachina Medina.

Mrs. Lachina Medina didn't believe Von Cosel had her sister's body. She told Perez it was only a wax replica.

The macabre events quieted for a while.

But eight years later Von Cosel had built a shack in the brush near 17th and Flager Ave. Perez, who had been elected constable, received word from undertaker Ben Lopez to take a look.

Inside, he said, he found Elena's body.

A young attorney, Enrique Esquinado Jr., became interested in the case. He said Mrs. Lachina Medina had been to see him and spoke of a fear she felt every time she visited her sister's crypt.

She had been to see Von Cosel, too. "Don't worry," she said to her. "Your sister is all right. I have her here with me."

Elena was lying in Von Cosel's shack on the same bed she died in. Esquinado took the news to the sheriff. But the sheriff said Von Cosel was innocent. He liked to work with paper mache dolls.

Mrs. Lachina Medina still wanted Esquinado to do something. She had begged Von Cosel to take Elena's body back to the crypt. But he didn't.

Transplant of Liver Fatal

NEW YORK (AP) — A 17-year-old boy died at Metropolitan Hospital Sunday, two days after undergoing a rare liver transplant operation.

The boy, whose name was not disclosed, had been in critical condition after the operation.

In an effort to stem an acute case of hepatitis, a liver disease, doctors performed a six-hour transplant operation.

Koreans Hail the 'Great Texas Giant'

By FRANK CORMIER
SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — President Johnson was welcomed to South Korea today by an estimated two million people who broke down metal fences, swarmed around police and clung to rooftops for their first glimpse of the man hailed in a typical banner as the "Great Texas Giant."

Seoul turned out the biggest and friendliest crowd of Johnson's seven-nation tour around the eastern rim of Communist China.

The President responded by popping out of his car half a dozen times to mix with the confetti-tossing, flag-waving throng.

Facing massed crowds estimated by police at 350,000 in City Hall Square, the President voiced concern for the safety of those who pushed, shoved and trampled each other in an effort to get a better view. He urged courtesy and caution "so we don't hurt anyone."

Harking back to the Korean War in which 54,246 Americans stood on "hallowed ground," War in which 54,246 Americans died, Johnson said he was standing on "hallowed ground."

"I have come to express our gratitude for the brave and generous help you are giving to our common ally, Viet Nam — 50th on the battlefield and in rebuilding the countryside. This is the act of a nation that understands the nature of aggression and that knows what it means to have help in resisting that aggression."

A huge cheer echoed over the square.

South Korean President Chung Hee Park, who has sent 45,000 troops to Viet Nam, had waiting a variety of requests for aid, including $300 million for development projects, a guarantee of at least $200 million a year to support the South Korean army, and more orders for South Korean manufacturers to supply the forces in Viet Nam.

The vast outpouring of Koreans came as Johnson entered the last stage of his 17-day, 31,000-mile journey around the eastern rim of Communist China. He leaves for Washington Wednesday, stopping en route for nearly 12 hours in Anchorage, Alaska.

He flew to Korea from Kuala Lumpur, capital of Malaysia, where he voiced a new warning to Communist China, the old foe of Korean War days. He said the Chinese Reds were inviting danger by development of nuclear-tipped missiles. He promised that the United States would offer protection against nuclear blackmail to nations that forego development of their own nuclear weapons.

Forestry Day at Experiment Station Nov. 4

The Southwest Branch Station of the University of Arkansas Agricultural Experiment Station will hold a Forestry Management Study Day on Friday, Nov. 4, according to Cecil M. Bittle, assistant director in charge of the Hope facility.

The program, which is specially designed for timber owners, will get underway at 10:00 a.m. During the morning, speakers from the forest and timber industries will discuss present demands for pulpwood, plywood, and sawlogs. There will also be discussions of services available to timberland owners from Federal and State agencies, and from consulting foresters.

Following a Dutch treat lunch and an equipment display, visitors will be taken on a tour of the forestry research underway at the Station. This tour will include stops at several pine management studies, hardwood plantations, Christmas tree studies, and tip moth control studies. The program will end about 3:00 p.m., said Bittle.

Everyone interested in timber management and production is invited to attend the Study Day.

Voter Apathy Seems to Be Vogue Now

By HARRY W. BALL
HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — President Johnson paid a non-political visit to Republican Pennsylvania one fine September day in 1966.

What he said in his nonpolitical speech has been making political grist in Pennsylvania's gubernatorial campaign ever since.

The setting was friendly. The community of Dallastown — population 3,600 — was celebrating its centennial and thousands had gathered to commemorate the day.

On the bunting-draped platform was Republican Gov. William W. Scranton, warmly welcoming the President.

In such hospitable surroundings, it was understandable that a distinguished guest should be moved to an accolade. The President was so moved.

"Pennsylvanians have a lot to be proud of. You have been a leader throughout this nation in the field of education. You've been a leader for many years and have produced some of the greatest leaders in America in the field of conservation. You've been a leader in preserving our American heritage in this country. You've been a leader in protecting the beauty of our land," Johnson said.

When the Republican party's platform appeared a short while later Page 8 was a deadpan presentation of the Democratic President's panegyric.

The Democrats' elder statesman, David L. Lawrence, 77, hurried to Washington to set matters straight.

Lawrence announced he had talked it over at the White House and was authorized to say the Republicans "have committed a great fraud on the president of the United States." The President, said Lawrence, definitely did not have in mind this "Madison Avenue crowd running things in Pennsylvania today."

The incident epitomizes the gubernatorial campaign. The reaction of the voters: extreme apathy.

The contestants are: Republican Lt. Gov. Raymond P. Shafer, Yale classmate of Scanton. Scanton is ineligible by law to succeed himself. Shafer, 49, son of a Protestant minister, was a torpedo boat commander in World War II. He started in politics as district attorney of his native Crawford County.

Milton J. Shapp, 54, a Philadelphia who turned to politics after phenomenal success in business. He won the Democratic nomination by defeating the organization-endorsed candidate — the first time such a thing has happened in either party for the office of governor.

Edward S. Swartz, 56, businessman and former legislator who was a Barry Goldwater delegate to the 1964 Republican National Convention, where Scanton sought the presidential nomination. He's running on the Conservative Constitutional party ticket.

George S. Taylor of Philadelphia, Socialist Labor candidate, a perennial who polled only 14,340 votes out of 4,378,042 cast in the 1962 gubernatorial election.

American Women Go In for Insurance in a Very Big Way

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

American women are going in for insurance in a big way. According to an industry estimate, they now own $130 billion in life insurance. The average woman executive last year bought a $10,000 policy, the policies bought by housewives averaged $3,900.

If people could digest grass and other plants as readily as do sheep and cows, by simply getting rid of the world's livestock the earth could support 14.5 billion more human beings than it now has.

A noisy home life can make you physically ill. Scientists have found that a noise level of 100 to 120 decibels can cause gastric ulcers and temporary deafness. And you can reach that level by simultaneously turning on a vent fan, the dishwasher, the garbage disposal unit and the radio or television set.

We like to think of ourselves as inveterate travelers, but some 60 million U.S. adults have never gone more than 200 miles from home. And three out of five have never spent a night in a motel or hotel. Only five per cent of motor trips are for more than 500 miles.

Life is getting easier for women all the time. Modern gals complain their foundation garments are irksome, but the girdles they wore back about 1500 B.C. were made of heavy iron rings.

The many enjoyable years of work I have devoted to helping build our great state convince me of one thing: Much more can be done — now. Our tax revenues are breaking all records. This money needs to be invested in sound programs to help get our counties out of the dust . . . to attract more new industry . . . to raise teaching salaries. CRYING FOR BALANCE

When we think of what a two-party system could mean for Arkansas we can't help but recall the forthright statement of "Mr. Democrat" himself, former President Harry S. Truman. Here's what he once said in an interview.

"Question: Does the United States need its two-party system?"

"Answer: Yes, it does. We've got to have a two-party system in order to have an opposition to keep those in control on their toes. If you don't, the first thing you know the top dog will forget the underdog, as the underdog sometimes does when he becomes top dog. That's the human animal."

Let's Act Now!

It's time for all Democrats, Independents, and Republicans to work together, wipe the slate clean, and consider the future of Arkansas ahead of the selfish interests of these cynics who now control the Democratic nominee for Governor.

Creative Films? Few $$ Needed
By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) Max Von Sydow, a survivor of such big budget beauties as "The Greatest Story Ever Told" and "Hawaii," believes strongly in the artistic superiority of low budget films. He's done plenty of them, too, in his native Sweden.

"I think that low budget films," he says, "encourage creativity and are inclined to be more courageous."

He just finished shooting a picture in Sweden for Ingmar Bergman. It's called "The Hour of the Wolf," and deals with an artist's decline into insanity and eventual suicide. The entire crew—cast and technicians—consisted of 35 people, and the budget was around $350,000. He thinks it is "a beautiful piece of film—and very courageous."

Von Sydow says that when he first told Bergman he was going to do "The Greatest Story Ever Told," the great Swedish director was against the idea. He thought Von Sydow says that the picture should be made "in a Swedish sandpit and in the Swedish language." I wondered what Bergman thought about it, now that it was finished.

"He never saw it," Von Sydow said.

Interesting bit of theological thinking from Vic Damone: "I believe," he says, "that The Beatles are proof of God's existence. They went along for awhile making their sounds and then they apparently weren't satisfied with what they were doing."

"So they turned around and wrote lovely songs like 'Yesterday' and 'Michelle.' That shows that God was there, pointing them in the right direction."

husband and a son, but no more. One morning, driving to work, Lucy passed a spot where the police were clearing away an accident. She suddenly thought of Helen Thurston. When Lucy reached the studio, she found Helen's telephone number. She called and woke up the woman.

Lucy really had nothing to say. She asked Helen how her family was. Helen said they were fine. "My husband is coming home this morning from a motorcycle trip." It wasn't until a few hours later that the police notified Helen that her husband had been killed, right where Lucy had that first thought about Helen Thurston.

Olivia DeHavilland says she has suddenly learned a great truth about herself.

'Bent Stovebolts' Vs. 'Chizlers'

By BOB COCHNAR and DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—It isn't enough that racing fans should be familiar with drivers' names, techniques and engineering to be able to fully appreciate the sport.

One must also know the language. What's more, if, say, a sports car nut's interest in racing spills over into oval racing or drag racing, he must know three languages. Tri-lingual, if you please.

Even racing people themselves get caught up in it.

Grand National stock car driver David Pearson claims to have been left speechless by a young drag racing fan he encountered recently at Bristol, Tenn. International Speedway, which also has one of the finest drag strips in the country.

"What kinda' juice you got in this toy?" the fan asked Pearson, who was standing by his wild-looking yellow rear-engine Dodge Dart station wagon.

"Hey! This baby's tough," the drag fan went on. "I bet it's unreal. Will it do a wheelie?"

"That fellow over there said it won't beat a bent stovebolt. That's 'cause he don't like Chizlers. But I bet it's a hauler, so why don't you get your brain bucker and light 'er off?"

Pearson, understandably, was flabbergasted. But he wouldn't have been had he heard the same bit in his own language, to wit:

"How much Pure will this goat hold? Hey! This honker looks real sanitary. I'll bet she'll hum. Can you hang it out?"

"The fellow over there said you can't even beat a Shaky. That's 'cause he don't like goats and Mayflowers. But I bet it will really are. So why don't you get your bonnet and look at some waving green?"

For the layman, and for the sports car fan (their language generally shuns slang for supertechnical terms), here are the translations of both "languages."

"What type of fuel do you burn in this racer? This car looks nice and safe. I bet it has exceptional performance. Will the wheels lift on the start?"

"That fellow over there said it won't beat a Chevrolet. But that's because he doesn't like Chrysler products. I bet him it's a very fast car, so why don't you get your helmet and go racing?"

We were able to translate the language with the help of a glossary of racing terms

Wheeling it published by the racing weekly, National Speed Sport News.

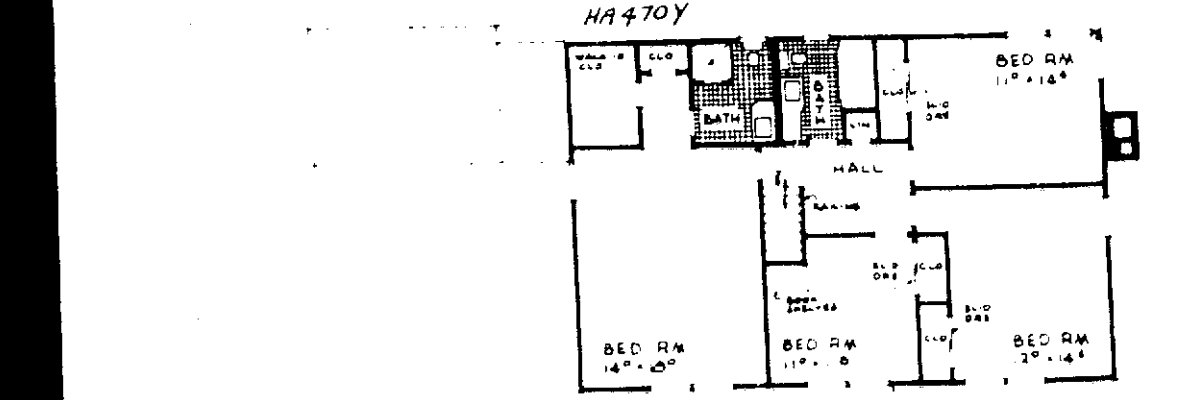

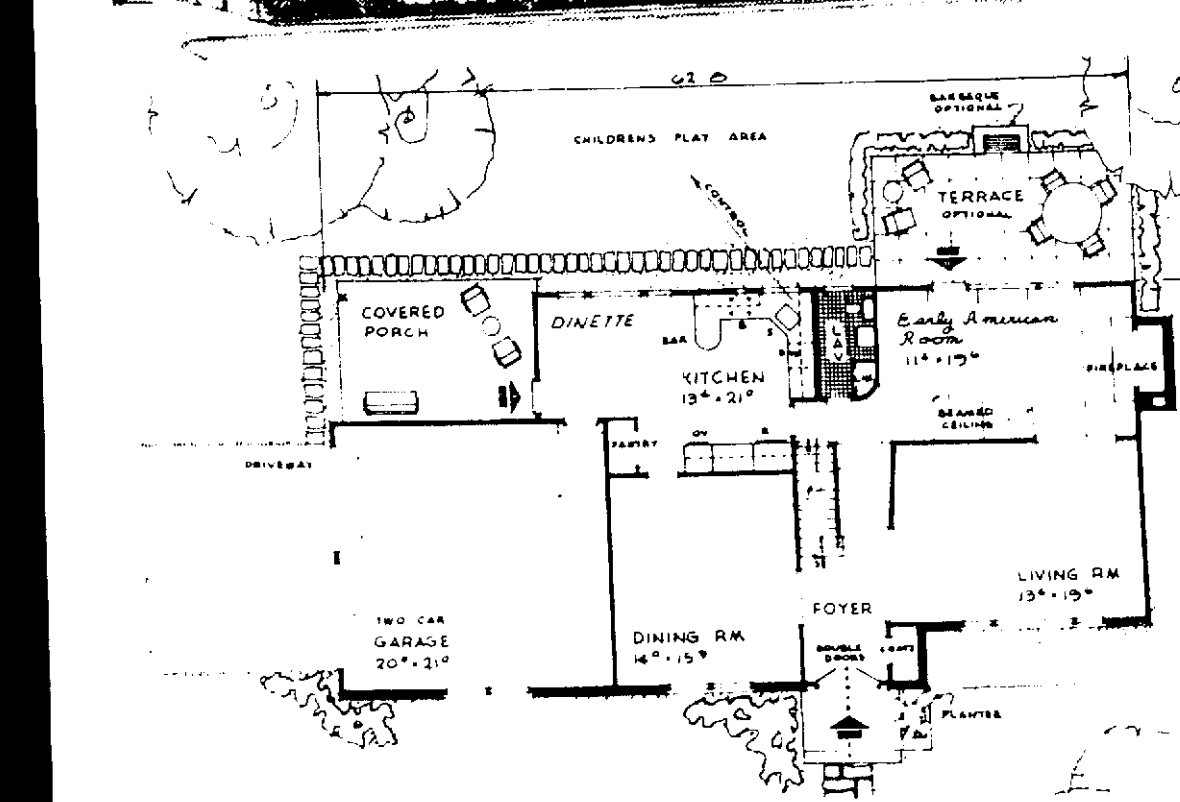

The paper suggests it would help the situation immensely if a "single" language would evolve to cover all forms of racing.

We agree. So would manufacturers, it would seem. The Chevrolet people doubtless didn't have "bent stovebolt" or "Shaky" in mind when they put out their first V-8.

SPINOFFS: The day's heh! heh! news (news-for-General-Motors-fans-to-snickerover)—Ford recently announced plans to build an electric car. Meanwhile, GM waited quietly in the wings and later came out with the announcement that it already had built an electric car prototype. If that wasn't salt enough, GM also revealed it had gas turbine vehicles, a Stirling thermal engine and advanced fuel cell concepts to show.

Great Society Impact on Americans

EDITORS' NOTE — The impact of bills passed by the 89th Congress which adjourned late Saturday will be felt in homes and family circles across the land. To explore the effect of the congressional actions, this story illustrates some of the things the 1966 session did for, to, a "typical" family in a typical American community. By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY WASHINGTON (AP) — The session of the "Great Society" Congress will have profound impact on all Americans — their hopes and fears, their pocketbooks, their way of life. A stepped-up war on poverty, more for the Viet Nam war, sums to stake education at one, a boost in the minimum wage, auto safety, consumer protection, new remedies for city and public transportation, steps to clean up the air and waters, to beautify highways — these are just a few of the problems Congress tackled. The second session of the 89th Congress specifically authorized Robert Shriver, director of the war on poverty, to provide birth control devices upon request of local community, and the man involved. To explore the effect of the programs enacted or extended this year, let's take a "typical" family living in Beauville, a typical Midwest city (pop. 15,000). This family consists of dad, 35, who makes $10,400 a year; mom, who tries to make ends meet and save a little; Bob, 24, who is with the Marines in Viet Nam; Joe, 20, a kind of alienated lad who has failed to get with the times (he got a bad conduct discharge from the Army and doesn't work); Nancy, 19, who attends state university, is so busy with her studies, is so busy in the wide world and is so busy with her father fondly calls a "gooder"; and, last but not least, Poochie, a poodle.

Some of the things the 1966 session did for, or to, this family — Dad — His take-home pay is $2,400 a week on May because the income tax withholding went up from $20.80 to $20. However, if he has $15,000 in the bank or savings and if it will now be fully insured, as compared with the previous $10,000 limit. If he's thinking of buying a new car in '68, he can expect it to be more cashworthy. Meantime, the manufacturer's excise tax on new autos has gone up from 6 to 7 per cent, and the tax on phone calls from 3 to 10 per cent. As for Mom, if dad is a sports fan, she can look forward to seeing more pro football games. Mom — The supermarket laundromat will be a little easier to get out, though not right away. Labels will be easier to read, giant half-quarts and jumbos are on their way out, the air space in the top of the package seems likely to diminish. Mom can hope for a better education for Nancy, and the grandchildren, if any, in view of $6.2 billion in aid to elementary and secondary schools and $3.9 billion for colleges; if she goes touring she will be able to see more parks; the family takes a cruise, it will be better able to avoid a trap ship. Operators of foreign liners will advertise whether they meet safety standards. If mom and dad are interested in a less way to finance presidential campaigns, they can check a box on their joint income tax return and $2 will go to a kitty for the purpose. BE ACCURATE ESTIMATES FRANKFORT, Ky. Not Really Bourgeois BUDAPEST—(NEA)—Communists are noted for their puritanical outlook, so it comes as a shock to find the Hungarian People's Republic running not only a national lottery but a betting scheme based on soccer results as well.

In fact, Ferenc Szohar, state director of these enterprises, is rather apologetic about Toto-Lotto, as it is called. "You can't call it gambling really," he protests. "Not when a lottery ticket costs only 10 cents."

But I'm not so sure. Downstairs at Toto-Lotto headquarters I caught a whiff of sulphur and brimstone as I watched Hungarians of all types line up at the windows to buy their lottery tickets. Some had positively feverish gleams in their eyes.

Bettors stand to win as much as $100,000, which is the record lottery prize to date. But motorcars and furnished flats are also offered as Toto prizes, as these are often more welcome than cash. (Delivery time on new cars is two years, while there is a 10-year waiting list for flats in Budapest.)

The Toto end of the operation is, in fact, big business by anyone's standards, with an annual turnover of over $41 million.

Some two million Hungarians, or one in five of the population, buy lottery tickets each week. They are sold in tobacco shops, bars, restaurants, banks, and even the postmen peddle them.

Forty per cent of the gross take is earmarked by Toto-Lotto to build new flats to offer as prizes. Inasmuch as these flats are worth from $12,000 to $14,000 apiece, the winners usually are besieged by marriage proposals.

Toto-Lotto is as publicity-conscious as Madison Avenue. The weekly drawing of the lucky numbers is usually made in the full glare of the public gaze by some pretty girl clad in a bikini. Winners are also fully publicized, being interviewed in the press and on television.

A smaller number of punters (about 200,000) play Toto, which grosses more than $14 million yearly. It consists of picking the winners of 14 soccer matches, all of which are played on Sunday afternoons. Inasmuch as the first match starts at 1 p.m., the Toto cards must arrive at Toto-Lotto headquarters by noon Sunday to be valid.

Biggest Toto win to date was a $78,000 prize, won in May, 1965, by five brothers, all of whom are soccer fans. (You have to follow soccer closely and to study team form in order to come out ahead at Toto.)

Why does Hungary's Communist regime tolerate gambling, which is usually associated with bourgeois morality? Toto is a cheap way, frankly, of securing public finance for the building of new apartment blocks.

As for Toto, the state's bite in this case is 40 per cent, out of which it finances the national sports program after printing and administrative costs are deducted. The state's share, which amounted to nearly $6 million last year, is used to build new stadia, to support soccer teams and to finance athletes who represent Hungary at the Olympic games or other international sports meets.

Altogether, communism is making the fleshpots pay.

Budapest crowds hail a truckload of freedom fighters, the people's "army" in the war against their own Communist dictatorship and the foreign oppressor, the Soviet Union.

Hungarian fury turned against everything Soviet. The head of Joseph Stalin, toppled from his monument, lies ignominiously in a Budapest street.

What began as a protest among writers against the excesses of a police state exploded on Oct. 23 into open rebellion—an uprising of the people against the so-called People's Democracy. For a few agonizing weeks in 1956 it held the attention of a world torn between desire to help a valiant people and fear that it might ignite a greater war. All too soon the brilliant flame of liberty was smothered by armed might, but the world will not soon forget the Hungarian Revolution.

A girl proudly wears a national emblem at a street rally during the brief period it appeared the uprising might succeed.

Soviet tanks sealed the revolution's doom, moving on Budapest in force on Nov. 4. Heroic Hungarians battled Red armor with sticks, stones and bare fists in the blood bath that followed.

The aftermath: For Hungary, rows of coffins. For the free world, questions. What should have been done? What could have been done?

Salute To A "Sissy"

by Footsie Britt

For some time I've been bored by seeing and hearing Win Rockefeller's opponent refer to my running mate as a "prissy sissy." I ask you to examine Win Rockefeller's World War II record of military service. Then make your decision.

Rockefeller enlisted as a private at the beginning of the war, and later participated in the successful invasions of Guam and Leyte. Later, in the early evening of April 2, 1945, a Kamikazi pilot deliberately rammed his plane into the troop ship Henrico, then participating in the Okinawa invasion, killing and injuring many of Win Rockefeller's fellow soldiers.

By then a Major and the senior officer left alive, Rockefeller took command of his regiment. Though badly burned he remained in command till relieved the following day, and was then transferred to the 373rd Station Hospital on Guam.

For this he was awarded the Bronze Star, with Combat V, and the Purple Heart for wounds received in action. The picture of Win Rockefeller and comrades you see on this page was made at the hospital in May, 1945 — THE SAME MONTH HIS OPPONENT WAS RETURNED FROM HONOLULU WITHOUT EVER SEEING ACTION AND DISCHARGED FROM THE U. S. MARINE CORPS, SOME MONTHS BEFORE THE WAR'S END!

True, Johnson had a minor ear injury; but he never heard a shot fired in anger. Most of his time was spent in target practice and as a rifle instructor.

The difference in the records? Cardboard targets can't shoot back — live enemy targets can and do; as so many of us will always remember.

I was present at Fort Benning, Georgia, last summer when Win Rockefeller was honored by being inducted into the U. S. Army Infantry "Hall of Fame." I share his love and respect for America's fighting men of all wars.

As for Johnson's military career, I can say only this: He talks a good fight; while Rockefeller lets action speak for itself.

STANLEY BAKER

HOLLYWOOD—(N. E. A.)—It's a hard climb up from the coal mines of the Rhondda Valley in Wales to international theatrical stardom, but Stanley Baker has made it. It took a little bit of luck and a lot of Glyn Morse.

And, because of what Glyn Morse had done for him, Stanley Baker is now doing the same thing for Richard Evans.

Baker comes from a coal mining family in Ferndale, in the hard, struggling Rhondda Valley of South Wales. He says that every boy in the valley grows up knowing one stark fact of life—if he cannot somehow escape from his

Learn How to Use New Laundry Equipment

The continued use of the coin-operated laundry reflects a growing pattern in homemaking in the United States. It also has uncovered the startling fact that the majority of junior and senior high school girls know little if nothing about operating home laundry equipment.

Frank Spangler, who has three daughters, says this discovery made him stop and think. An executive with Westinghouse and especially involved in the development of coin-operated laundry and drycleaning equipment, Spangler admitted he was upset to learn how little parents teach their children about handling today's automatic washers.

One reason for his concern is that a growing number of coin-op clients are youngsters and newlyweds who use money they saved by not buying laundry equipment for boats, color TV or stereo.

Another is that a high school class session for junior and senior girls in Mansfield, Ohio, where he also operates a coin-op setup, definitely showed a need for special instruction in laundering inside or outside the home.

Spangler has been in the coin-op business since it got off the ground in 1946-47 and his current operation has been open 24 hours a day since 1960.

In this time he has learned and backed up his observations with surveys that show 11 per cent of the women in the United States rely upon the coin-operated laundry, and of those who use such laundries, 50 per cent have home laundry equipment as well.

Spangler feels most women are quite shrewd and earnestly try to save their husbands' money.

In spite of this, too many in the low-income bracket waste money by misusing detergents and laundry additives.

"Many women destroy their washing," he says. "They come into the stores with a basket looking like an apothecary shop and put something of everything in the machine. Often these work against each other. Few women know how to use chlorine bleaches properly. They put them in too soon."

Coin-operated laundries also offer special dry-cleaning and pressing equipment. This has proved economical for coats and jackets, skirts, suits, wool shirts, slacks and pants.

"Generally," Spangler says, "the prices in the coin laundering business are essentially the same as when the industry began. Only now we have better equipment and operators."

environment, he will be forced to become a miner to live.

And so it is generally accepted that boys will try to get out. That is why Stanley Baker's parents encouraged him to go to Cardiff and try out for Emyln Williams' play. It was a possible avenue of escape.

Stanley Baker was 13½ at the time. He had heard about the tryout from Glyn Morse, who was his master of arts and crafts at school. Already, Morse had had a powerful effect on his life.

Earlier, Baker had been anything but a model boy. He loved sports of all kinds—he was a champion swimmer, a fine soccer player, the schoolboy boxing champ in his weight class—but otherwise he had been uninterested in anything. In fact, he admits he was "something of a little monster."

Once he had been hauled to the headmaster's office because he had hit one of the masters. But all that changed when he met Morse. Almost overnight, under the gentle guidance of this man, he became a model student.

Morse told him that Williams was doing a play and needed two teen-age Welsh boys. Baker was one of several hundred who showed up, all eager to take the first step away from the mines. Baker was one of two chosen; the other was a 15-year-old named Richard Burton.

For Baker—as well as Burton—this was the start of a new life and a new career. He quit school and never went back. When he was 15, he joined the Birmingham Repertory Company, and he stayed with that group for three vital years.

Each week, during those three years, Glyn Morse sent him two books. Baker had to read them and write a report and send it back to his former schoolmaster. Through this impromptu correspondence course, Baker gained the intellectual background he possesses.

His career progressed, on the English stage and then in films. He produced and starred in two fine films recently, "Zulu" and "The Sands of the Kalahari." Currently, he is shooting a two-part show for Bob Hope's Chrysler Theater, a spy story called "Code Name: Heracles" which is actually a pilot film for a projected series.

Four years ago, Glyn Morse retired. Baker now quite successful, bought a house for the man who had done so much for him. The house was in Bristol, England. Morse began going to the Bristol Old Vic Theater and took an interest in the school the theater maintains.

A few months ago, Morse telephoned Baker and asked him to come to Bristol to see the school's production of "The Taming of the Shrew." Baker didn't know the purpose of the invitation but went anyhow. As soon as he saw the play, though, he knew. Playing Petruchio was a teen-age Welsh boy, Richard Evans.

"It was like holding a mirror to myself, as I was 20 years ago," Baker says.

Morse said that the boy needed help. Baker undertook the job, as Morse had done for him 25 years before. He got Evans into the Nottingham Repertory Company, found him a good agent, and promised to look after him.

The baton of kindness had been passed on.
